

3

Repeat the beginning of the previous step with the 5 cut-outs of the big flower.

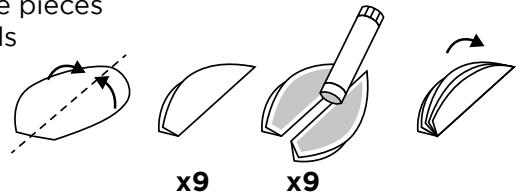

Overlap them, punch through the center and set them a side.

4

To make the heart of the flower: fold the 9 pieces of the pistil in two and place them together by gluing the two sides in contact, repeat until all 9 pieces are glued together.

Gently unfold the pieces and glue the ends together to form the entire pistil.

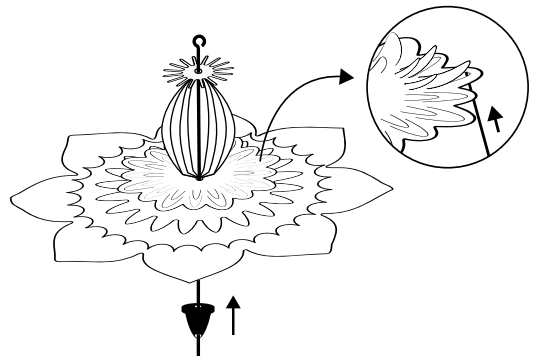

5

Thread the cut-outs as shown in the diagrams opposite. Separate the petals of the 3rd cut-out.

Finish by putting on a rubber stopper to hold the finished piece in place.

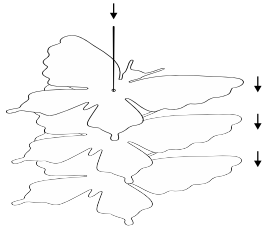

You can now bend your rod slightly.

ASSEMBLING THE BUTTERFLIES

6

Overlay the 3 butterflies on the cardboard and punch through the center with the needle.

7

Take the two remaining stems attached by a rubber stopper.

1. Thread the rubber stopper onto the rods.

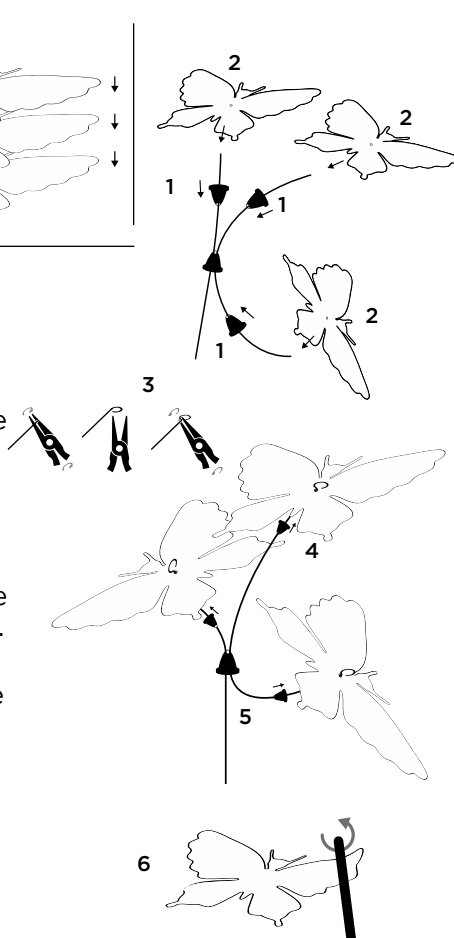

2. Thread the butterflies.

3. Using round pliers, form a loop at the end of the rod.

4. Gently push your butterflies then the stoppers to wedge them at the loop.

5. Bend the second rod in half at the point of the rubber stopper to give a sense of flight.

6. Using the stick, turn and bend the wings, to bring them to life. This is done by delicately stretching the wings by running them between the stick and your thumb.

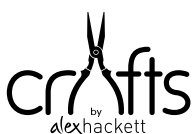

8

You have made your bouquet. Use the cutting pliers to adjust the height of your stems.

It's time to unscrew the cap from the small bottle and plant your pretty creation.
